ACRU's Roman: Elected officials must stop destruction by mobs

ACRU President Lori Roman writes in her latest column that WE MUST hold public officials responsible for protecting our history and controlling violent mobs. She encourages discussion—not destruction. Election integrity matters. And so does the integrity of elected officials. We hope you'll visit our Protect Monuments project website and download the Protect Our Monuments pledge for your favorite elected official to sign and return to us.

ACRU's Blackwell: Nursing home vote fraud happens, and is preventable

“Vote fraudsters recognize the unique challenges of some seniors, and exploit these to achieve their own deceitful political ends. The fraud is real, institutionalized—and must be stopped.”

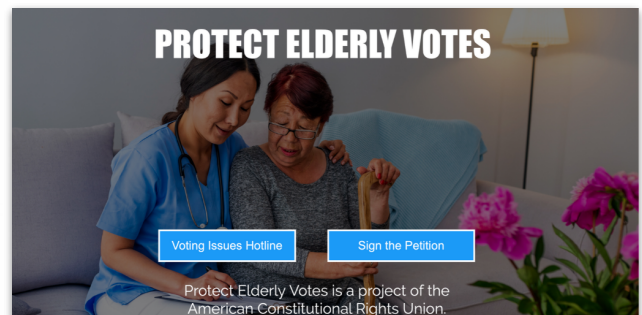

Amb. J. Kenneth Blackwell, member of ACRU Action Fund Board of Directors and ACRU

Policy Board. Please visit our Protect Elderly Votes website and see what actions you can take to protect the votes of our greatest generation.

ACRU's Toloczko: On ACRU's Protect Military Votes project

“Military spouses are often unappreciated patriots. They serve us, and we must, in turn, serve them. Protecting their political voices should be a national priority.” Kerri Toloczko, Vice President of Policy, ACRU. As the September deadline approaches for military families to request absentee ballots, please visit our Protect Military Votes website for instructions about registering and voting from a military post.

Protect Military Votes

A downloadable senior citizen voting resource for elected officials

Are you an elected official or staff to an official? Do you visit senior or assisted living centers in your area to discuss policy with residents? If so, we hope you will download our Senior Citizen Voter Bill of Rights—a great resource for you and your constituents that can be easily downloaded and copied to be used as a handout.

ACRU is the only organization focused on protecting the elderly from vote theft and suppression. Our ACRU Protect Elderly Votes project ensures our parents and grandparents in nursing homes are protected from staff and visitors who would manipulate or coerce votes from these unsuspecting elderly residents. Please help us support this vulnerable and oft forgotten group of citizens.

NATIONAL

Mail-only voting is a vote stealer

According to an analysis of this year's primaries by National Public Radio, at least 65,000 mail in votes were not counted in 17 states studied. Uncounted mail-only ballots, even without malfeasance by dishonest election activists, are a way to stifle American's political voices. Many elections have been determined by a handful of votes. 65,000 is a big handful.

Inaccurate voter registration is an incubator for fraud

The difference between absentee voting and mail-only voting is that absentee voting requires a request for a ballot, but mail-only voting means a ballot will be sent to a house where a voter once lived. This article provides a great primer on why this is an invitation for fraud, and also uses Honest Elections Project data to show how widespread voter registration inaccuracies truly are.

Liberals call for mail ballot security identifies its problems

A leftist coalition and leftist former officials are asking the federal government for “security” funds for states advocating for mail-only elections. NO! But their request does identify important points. 1. The left is admitting there’s a problem. 2. What is stopping global bad actors from mailing perfect ballot facsimiles to American addresses? China counterfeits everything else - why not ballots?

IN THE STATES

GEORGIA

Dead cats voting: funny, not funny

Former Atlanta feline Cody Tims passed away in 2008 after a lifetime of service to his loving family. This cat apparently was signed on to a mailing list at one point that was then sold to vote activists (yet another mail-only voting problem.) Cody is a purrfect example of why voting lists need constant updating. It is appalling that this cat not only was a registered voter but is still a registered voter after having passed away twelve years ago.

NEW YORK

New York election officials skipped math class

Many important things happen immediately after elections for outgoing, newly incoming, and even incumbent officials. Time wasted counting votes means constituents are ignored and fraud gains an edge. A month after New York's mail in primaries, winners and losers are still in limbo. New York's nearly mail-only election is a mess and it's not going to get better by November.

CALIFORNIA

USPS failures contribute to suppressing votes

The current tally of mail in votes voided by California election officials in its March primary is 102,000+. Most were rejected because they arrived too late for counting. Combine the famous inefficiency of the post office with the potential of dishonest officials keeping ballots in the bottom drawer for a day or two, and what you've got is stolen votes.

ARIZONA

Arizona's Election Integrity Unit is a role model for other states

Arizona recently upped its game on election integrity with significant improvements to its Election Integrity Unit. These changes include an easy online election fraud reporting system, and aggressive action on any necessary litigation (including a recent double voting case.) We are grateful that Arizona is actively working to prevent fraud, not just waiting to address it after it happens.
